

Yarn from Idaho

Description

Here's a photo I made of some yarn I found this summer when I was in Idaho. The local yarn store, Knit-n-Crochet worked with a dyer from Ohio, Destination Yarn to create a color way reminiscent of the Coeur d'Alene lake that is available in a couple of different fiber combinations. The one I brought home is called First Class Single and is fingering weight, 70% merino, 30% silk. Oh so soft. It was tough to choose between the 3 fiber compositions on offer. The other two are blends as well: First Class MCN is wool, cashmere and nylon and Postcard is wool and nylon. I do not see these on the DY website so it appears to be uniquely available at the Coeur d'Alene store.
